Customer Reviews

If you work with teens it is tough to find useful tools. This one is a great social communication tool.

I work in a state psychiatric hospital on an adolescent inpatient unit and I run a girl's group every Monday evening. My patients really love these cards! They stimulate conversation and cover a variety of topics but be warned- there are several cards that I removed from the deck because they were about abortion, sexual abuse and pornography. Most, if not all, of my patients have a history of trauma and I just found that those cards were too sensitive for them. Other than that issue, this is a great tool to use either in an individual or group setting.

I have a teenage son who has PDD, nos, and Schizophrenia. This item has helped tremendously in teaching my son to have a conversation.

Great ice breaker for closed-mouth, distracted teens! One card can lead to in depth conversations.

Use these in my practice to work with my teens and even some of my adults. Great way to break the ice, or use as a cool down at the end of the session.

nice items

My teens were not receptive to the idea. However, I use them to drive my conversation with them. It has also been very helpful to my fiancé who did not have any prior relationship experience with teens and uses this to avoid awkward silence or one word answers from my teens.

Teen Talk In A Jar great Social Skills Product! I have teenager with Asperger's, high functioning Autism, but good for any teenager. We use this at home with our family to talk to our kids. The amazing discussions have had has eliminated the one word responses and really gotten all of us to have really good conversations. There is a family talk version of this too. Sometimes they have sales on their products. Totally recommend this product.
