Synopsis

"The three stories here, 'Hassan al-Mazaz al-Shaghouri's Final Victory,' 'Taboo,' and 'Eat of the Delicacies We Have Bestowed Upon You' represent Tamer's use of unornamented language that condenses into highly sarcastic tales, dotted with witty humor about the ongoing oppression of people in the Arab World. The writing puts into play the authoritarian power of coercion, yet at the same time is highly critical of the failures of both the individual and society, whose responses have been tamed and molded. Such themes are recurrent throughout Tamer's work, which includes 11 collections of short stories. Now, at 85, Zakaria Tamer is still able to generate literary 'newness,' making him worthy of his position as a master of the art of the Arabic short story." - Jennifer Acker & Hisham Bustani
