Customer Reviews

"The authors have done an outstanding job of compiling everyone's favorite running routes, from downtown scenic monument runs to urban parks to quiet suburban bike trails." Kathy Freedman Publisher and Editor Washington Running Report "Besides providing the essential facts a runner wants to know about each course, Carter and McCullough add delightful details that made me really want to run them myself." Henley F. Gabeau Executive Director Road Runners Club of America "An excellent and definitive guide to running venues in the Washington metropolitan area. It is a valuable reference for both long-time runners and newcomers." Robert C. Platt President D.C. Road Runners Club

Don Carter has logged nearly 30,000 running miles in Washington, D.C., since moving to the area in 1980. He's also competed in over 200 races, including 30 major marathons. A past president of the Montgomery County Road Runners Club, the largest running club in the Washington D.C. metro area, Carter has been an active promoter and organizer of running programs for the entire community. He has also written articles for his running club's newsletter, The Rundown, and for FootNotes. He currently resides in Alexandria, Virginia. Robert McCullough is a journalist and author who lives near Boston, Massachusetts. He is also the author of a sports interview collection entitled My Greatest Day in Baseball, and his writing has appeared in the Boston Globe, the Boston Phoenix, the Los Angeles Times, SPORT Magazine, and the New Age Journal. He has run four marathons, including Boston twice, both times as a bandit.

I recently moved to D.C. Being unfamiliar with the area, it helped me find some great running routes. A must have for anyone living in or around Washington D.C.
