Wildlife 911

Synopsis

Over his twenty-seven year career as a wildlife conservation officer for the State of Michigan, John Borkovich conducted some of the most fascinating, complex, and highly successful wildlife investigations in Michigan. His collection of true stories are action-packed, suspenseful, and often humorous. Ride along on arm-chair patrol as John Borkovich outsmarts deer poachers, thwarts fish thieves, and foils outlaws and felons. John's encounter with illegal immigrants, strange religious cults, and ordinary burglars puts his life in danger as he protects Michigan's natural resources.

Customer Reviews

John Borkovich served as a Wildlife Conservation Officer in the State of Michigan for 27 years. He is recipient of the Michigan Conservation Officer of the Year and the Shikar Safari International Wildlife Officer of the Year as well as other awards. He lives near Port Huron, Michigan.

John takes you on a fantastic Ride-a-long that spans his career. Sit back and strap in...you're gonna like this ride.

Thank you.

Very interesting, well written.

John did a great job writing this book and sharing his stories and experiences as a Michigan

Conservation Officer. After reading it I have a new found respect for the tough job our CO's have protecting our wildlife and natural resources in the great state of Michigan.

Well written, easy to read and NOT embellished. Lots of interesting short stories through a colorful career. Congratulations John, on getting your daily reports published. The cover art is great, too!

The stories are short and action packed. As a family we tend to read and talk about the stories after we read them.
